First Session: Monday, October 3, 2011, Grand Ballroom E

The purpose of the Committee on Brucellosis is to provide the support and direction needed to achieve the complete eradication of the disease in the United States. After the disease is eliminated from the United States, the focus will be on protecting the United States from introduction of the disease by maintaining strict health standards, through trade negotiations and other safeguarding and biosecurity efforts for the protection of animal and public health. The Committee on Brucellosis serves as a forum and clearing house for ideas and proposals that have been submitted to it by state and federal members, industry representatives, researchers, wildlife interests and others. The Committee on Brucellosis maintains three Subcommittees [Swine, Scientific Advisory, and Greater Yellowstone Area] that serve to facilitate the goals of the committee.
